Seven, that is a big congrats. Sadly at the rate my 30 and 32 year daughters are going that is a life reward I'm not receiving. I've told Tracy we need to become volunteer grandparents. She's not quite ready to put her hand up for the that yet. Glad you son in Afghanistan tracked you and gave you a positive, one of our work mates will be going to Quatar in a few months, even that stresses me, can't imagine what it is like to be in your shoes. Thanks for doing that and tell your son thanks, we certainly don't do enough for our service men and women.

I'm going to wait and see where the negotiations work out for the 9th. Look forward to meeting Keith and Colleen. Father's Day had its ups and downs. I helped with a charity event that wasn't well attended. I'll fill you in later. The good parts were, I heard from my eldest who's in Afghanistan, he's doing good. My other son is in Wisconsin and doing fine. But the best news was my daughter sent me a Happy Father's Day card "Grandpa". So that will be my 7th grandchild. She did it the right way too. Graduated from college, got married, got her doctorate, got a job then got pregnant... ☺

Probably going to have to work longer now so the wife can spoil another one!

Have a great week,
Mike

Then I'm going to recommend we don't attend on July 9th based on your input, and will work with Keith and Colleen about meeting with you to tour the site on the 16th. We have some time to work that, thanks. Hope you had a great father's day, I did, today my feet a bit twingy. Hiking with the eldest,

Hi Tom,

The meeting, I think is supposed to be on July 9th. That meeting is a CFAC meeting. They have a panel with city, county, congressional staff, businesses etc. on the panel. I attend as a guest. This is not even a CAG group, therefore I think the EPA should not be part of a potential PRP's panel.

I think I could break away for the day over to Columbia Falls. Would your staff be setting up the tour?

I do agree local is better, in more ways than one. (most of the time) Living in Libby has had its' draw backs.

Later,
Mike

Is this public meeting a formal EPA meeting or another lead by CFAC or by the local government?

Also, do you think you could break away on Thursday July 16 to go over and tour the CFAC site with myself (it is the next Libby week)? If that would work, I'd like to get Keith Large and Colleen Owen also onsite. Colleen is in Kalispell and I've been discussing how we might bring her into Libby and CFAC. It would be a considerable cost savings to have someone more local, wouldn't you agree?. Let me know, maybe we can coordinate.
